Died, On Thursday morning last, in the 35th year of his age, after a severe indisposition of fifteen days continuance, Mr. Adam Ewing, of this city, merchant. During a residence of near sixteen years, such was his cheerful disposition, affable demeanor, benevolence, and integrity in his dealings, as to gain him many friends in this city, who now sincerely lament his early death. He has left behind him to mourn his loss, six small children, who about two years ago had the unhappiness to be deprived of their mother. His remains were conveyed, on the evening of the day he died, to the Presbyterian church, attended by a large concourse of citizens, who were conscious of the virtues which endeared him to society. A discourse well adapted to the occasion, was delivered by the rev. doctor Buist, the pastor of that congregation. (Saturday, Oct. 29, 1796.)

Died, lately in Pennsylvania, at the seat of John Penn, esq. on Schuyskill, near Philadelphia, near Phylidelphia, James Heyward, Esq. of this city. Mr. Heyward served reputably as a volunteer in the American Army at the siege of Charleston, in our late Revolutionary war; and afterwards held a commission of captain lieutenant in the city corps of artillery. It may be truly said of him, that he was a warm friend, an affectionate relation, a worthy citizen, a brave and benevolent man.

Snatched hence, bereav'd of vital breath,
Clasp'd in the cold embrace of death;
Snatch'd from bright scenes without alloy,
Domestic comfort, social joy—
Good, pleasure, ease, that charm our race
Gay fortune's plum and smiling face,
In the full hour of manhood's bloom,
Lo! Heyward sleeps in yonder tomb!
The sprightly note, convivial bowl—
The feast of friendship, flow of soul,
Or joy more gently sweet and gay,
Stirs not his cold unconscious clay.
Deaf to affection's tender tone
The sigh of grief, the sorrowing moan;
Torpide and deaf the insensate ear
Hears not her voice it loved to hear.

"It is with extreme concern I discharge the melancholy duty of announcing to you the death of Major General Anthony Wayne, who, after an exceeding painful visitation of the gout, expired this morning between the hours of 2 and 3 o'clock.

This disorder attacked him about the 17th ultimo, during a very favourable passage from Detroit hither, where we arrived on the evening of the succeeding day—it by turns affected his feet, knees and hands, with a considerable degree of inflammation and a great degree of pain, until about the 30th, when the violence of both beginning gradually to abate, inspired flattering hopes of his speedy recovery: alas! it appeared that the gout had taken possession of his stomach, where it remained with unconquerable obstinacy and extreme torture, until it put a period to his existence. His remains will be interred to-morrow, within the fort, with military honors."
